A BEAUTIFUL DIVIDEND OF DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

Hot pink clouds silhouette workmen on the Courthouse Square construction project in San Rafael. The sunrise shortly before 8:30 a.m. today was called "the most beautiful I've seen in 40 years in Marin" by one woman who called the Independent-Journal. Shortly after photographer Bob Hax caught this scene from the top of the I-J Building, a double rainbow added its sparkle - and then the clouds turned dark and started to drip. But the energy-crisis change in time caused thousands of Marinites to see some morning beauty they otherwise would have missed.

Wornum Announces Plans To Run For The Assembly

Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum last night announced he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Ninth Assembly District.

He confirmed his unofficial candidacy at the Kent Woodlands home of Roger Kent before a crowd of several hundred invited persons who sipped champagne against a background of chamber music.

The longtime incumbent in the district, Republican William T. Bagley, is running for state controller instead of reelection. The district includes all of Marin and Southern Sonoma.

Wornum, new chairman of the board of supervisors, cited his experience as a Mill Valley City councilman and county supervisor and his service on regional agencies, saying he had served his "political apprenticeship.

He declared that he is "not ashamed of being called a politician," and decried the low repute of elected officials in the wake of Watergate. Politicians are what it takes "to keep the system running," he said.

Pointing to his chairmanship of the North Central Coast Regional Commission, he said he wanted to be in the Legislature when the 1977 session debates whether to continue controls on Wornum argued that Marin cannot afford to become "more and more exclusionary," and insisted it is possible to "preserve our environment and retain our creature comforts.'

Terming the board of supervisors "often just an arm of state government," he said big statewide issues such as housing and water could only be handled in Sacramento. To work on them at the local level is "just playing games," he added.

On other issues, Wornum opposes "just warehousing people" as at San Quentin Prison. He favors giving local government more state funds for mental health programs and shifting the tax base from property

"I'm in this because I want to serve," he said, "not for the money, not for the power, and not for the prestige -which has never been so low.

Answering questions from the crowd, he said he favors collective bargaining for public employees, but opposes allowing them to strike. Pressed to say whether he would apply this to teachers, he said "I'm not sure about the details.

He also announced that Carol Staley and Alice Yarish will manage his campaign.

The crowd included numerous Republicans as well, including fellow Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who declined pleas

Besides Santa Margarita and Marindale schools, the proposed bill would allow the district to continue to provide water to about 20 homes on Wolfback Ridge, the Muir Woods National Monument, Forts Baker, Barry and Cronkite and several private homes elsewhere.

Felson said he has asked Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, to introduce the legislation and will request county supervisors tomorrow to keep out of the Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, representing the two schools, has urged supervisors to ask the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission to give them jurisdiction over the matter.

Under certain conditions, the commission can invoke a rarely used section of state law that would enable the board of supervisors to force annexation of the schools to the water district, thus insuring continued water service.

One of the schools, Santa Margarita, has about 500 elementary students and the other, Marindale, has about 68 handicapped children.

The two schools, along with several homes in the Del Ganado Road-Las Ovejas Avenue area, form an island of unannexed land in Terra Linda.

Through an administrative error by the water district, the "island" was excluded when the rest of the Terra Linda area

"The uncontroverted evidence is that the respondent (Agnew) deliberately failed to report on his 1967 federal income return nearly $30,000 of taxable income which he knew the law required him to report and pay taxes on.

Agnew pleaded no contest to a federal income tax evasion charge and resigned the vice presidency Oct. 10. The Maryland Bar Association said the plea was an admission of professional misconduct and requested that disbarment proceedings begin. Agnew, who sought a temporary suspension rather than disbarment on the grounds the extreme action would destroy his livelihood, was notified of today's action by one of his

"He will not be making a comment now " said one of Agnew's secretaries when reached through the White House switchboard.

The special panel was appointed by the Maryland State Court of Appeals, highest court in the state, which will take final action on the disbarment recommendation.

Agnew served as Baltimore County executive and Maryland governor prior to being elected vice president, and his no contest plea to an income tax evasion charge related to a period when he was governor.

Following a federal investigation into a Maryland political kickback scheme, Agnew resigned as vice president and pleaded "no contest" to the tax charge. Other allegations against him were dropped

At a hearing by the threejudge panel last month, Agnew asked the judges not to disbar him, but instead suspend him temporarily, pleading that disbarment would destroy his means of livelihood.

"I can resume a useful place in the practice of law after my suspension," Agnew said at that time. "The practice of law means a lot to me. I want to return at some later date and bring credit to my practice and

Dash Says New Areas Need Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Chief Counsel Samuel Dash said today the Senate Watergate Committee has important, new information to provide the basis for continued hearings.

Dash did not identify the areas he said he would urge the committee to explore but said he was confident the committee would go along with his recommendation for renewed hear-

As part of its inquiry, and under a special law passed by Congress, the committee subpoenaed nearly 500 taped conversations and other White House materials. President Nixon said the list was so broad to impinge on presidential confidentiality and refused to turn over the materials.

Dash said the committee was prepared to reach a compromise on the issue and suggested that if the White House showed a willingness, the committee would greatly reduce the number of documents and other materials sought.

Dash said, however, that the committee would not be content to accept five tapes as originally requested and drop the request for all the other materi-

The five tapes Dash referred to are of conversations between Nixon and his former chief counsel, John W. Dean. The White House refused to honor subpoenas for them and the case still is pending in a federal court.

The committee has not gone to court to seek enforcement of the subpoenas for the nearly 500 additional materials, since the first case has not been settled.

Dash said, "We are not having any conversations about a compromise" but he noted that some White House aides had been quoted as saying they would be willing to look at a pared-down request.

'We may just want to pursue that," Dash said on the NBC-TV Today Show. "I think that the committee has always been willing to work things out rather than go to court ... (but) if necessary we would go to

In drawing up the long list of additional materials, Dash said, "We set the outer boundaries of what is relevant." He said every item on the subpoenaed list was relevant and could be justified "but obviously some are much more relevant" than oth-

"If there would be a (White House) willingness to compromise, we could pare that down drastically. If we have to go to court -as we may have to do -then we would pare it down and would ask for only the highest priority items.'

Study Says Purchasing Power Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The average American family, contrary to what the administration says, was worse off economically in 1973 than in 1972, according to a congressional study on inflation.

With inflation and higher taxes outpacing wage increases during 1973, the average family ended the year with 1 per cent less purchasing power than it had in 1972, and the outlook for 1974 is no better, the report

The study, entitled "Inflation and the Consumer in 1973," was prepared by the staff of the House-Senate Economic Committee.

A "middle budget" family of four with $12,614 to spend had to pay an extra $1,168 to maintain its 1972 living standards in 1973, the study said.

Food cost that family $502 more during the year and Social Security taxes rose by $150 over 1972. Food price increases accounted for 61 per cent of the year's rise in the Consumer Price Index.

'There is no indication at this time that the rate of inflation will moderate in 1974 and consequently the real purchasing power of consumers is likely to continue to decline," the study said.

"In view of the recent slowdown in economic activity, and the energy crisis, unemployment will certainly increase during 1974. This situation of higher prices and fewer jobs will further erode consumer income and confidence, which in turn will add substantially to recessionary prospects in 1974."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, testified last Aug. 1 that "probably the key thing to say is that the real per capita incomes of the American people, after allowing for inflation, rose substantially from the fourth quarter of 1972 to the second quarter of 1973.'

But statements like those "are based on a selective use of statistics" which vary "so as to mask the true impact of inflation on consumer purchasing power in 1973," the study said.

The decline has been mostly among Catholics. In 1958, Gallup reported 71 per cent of Catholics attending church. Last year the figure was 55 per cent. There has been little change among Jews, with a 19 per cent average attendance rate, or Protestants, at 37 per

Grand Jury Probe Asked Of Wornum

The Marin County Grand Jury was asked today to investigate the chairman of the North Central Coast Regional Commission for "a grievous breach of the public trust.'

Bolinas attorney Paul D. Kayfetz, who last month charged chairman Michael Wornum with a conflict-of-interest, said today there is not enough evidence to prove a case of violation of the state conflict-of-interest laws.

"I do believe there is ample evidence to establish a grievous breach of the public trust by Mr. Wornum," he added, however.

He charged that Wornum. also chairman of the county board of supervisors, and a member of the Association of Bay Area Governments' coastline planning committee, "attempted to curry favor" with the Kent family by "acting to influence approvals for their Seadrift subdivision by the very agencies he headed. Wornum himself called for a grand jury investigation last month to clear him of allegations by Kayfetz that an exchange of letters with Roger Kent, outlining conditions for continued development of Seadrift at Stinson Beach, were politically motivated. Kent, a board member for the

A spokesman at the Maryland Court of Appeals gave no indication when the recommendation might be acted on.

In resigning the vice presidency Oct. 10, Agnew pleaded no contest to one count of income tax evasion for 1967. The court alleged that Agnew and his wife stated their income for that year as $26,099 while actually it was $55,599.

Then Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson told the court the government was dropping pursuit of further criminal charges against Agnew. U.S. Attorney George Beall had informed Agnew in August he was under investigation for possible bribe, conspiracy, extortion and

But in a 40-page "exposition of the evidence" presented at the time Agnew entered his plea, the Justice Department said the former vice president collected:

Approximately $50,000 in cash between 1966 and 1972 from Allen Green, president of Green Associates Inc., a Maryland engineering company, "to influence him to select the Green company for as many state road contracts as possible."

was annexed to the water district in 1950

The two schools received notice last month that their water would be cut off on Dec. 1.

Felson said the state water code, adopted about 1914, says customers outside district boundaries can be served only with "surplus water."

Since the water district is currently 25 per cent overdrafted, it has no surplus to deliver to these customers," he said. The bill would allow the district to continue supplying customers who were receiving water 'for human use" prior to the enactment of the moratorium last April (Apparently excluded would be the Nunes Ranch in Upper Lucas Valley, purchased for open space by area residents and pasture for about 20 hors-

Felson said it was "unfortunate" that the matter bubbled into controversy since county school officials were told Dec. 12 that the district was working on state legislation to solve the problem.

The water district's attorney Tom Thorner, said the proposed bill would apply statewide and would take effect upon the governor's signature.

As an emergency measure, he said, it could be rushed Permits For through the state legislature in as little as five days. "There is no known opposition," he add-Felson said he will ask county supervisors tomorrow "not to act precipitously and muddle the issue. We feel this (legislation) is the best solution." Thorner added that he did not agree with the county counsel's interpretation of the law which would allow the agency formation commission to give supervisors jurisdiction to force annexation.

Removal Of Drydocks On Tap

Sausalito city councilmen and county Supervisor Michael Wornum will discuss methods of removing the Richardson Bay drydocks during a meeting at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

The massive drydocks have been a source of annoyance to Sausalito and county officials since they were towed into the bay several years ago.

The council also may discuss ways of correcting an apparent error by the county elections office that incorrectly registered 154 houseboat dwellers outside Sausalito in the March 5 election, according to City Clerk Miriam Ansell.

An open letter to Mercedes-Benz owners.

The news about the energy crisis and possible fuel shortages concerns us all, and so I would ask you to consider an important fact: You own a Mercedes-Benz.

When you bought your Mercedes-Benz, you received, automatically, the benefits of engineering that had, for many years, been forced to face up to heavy West German taxation designed to limit engine size—and to European gasoline prices which often range over a dollar a gallon. And so Mercedes-Benz automobiles have always embodied the very essence of efficiency. By necessity:

Our latest, most advanced sedan, the 450SE, is a good example of the kind of efficiency I mean.

This is a V-8-powered automobile. Nevertheless, it can produce up to 30 percent better gasoline mileage than its domestic luxury counterparts. Among the engineering reasons why:

Its engine is unique. It is the only single overhead camshaft V-8 engine that employs a computerized fuel injection system to measure out the right amount of gasoline for the speed required.

The car weighs nearly half a ton less than comparable American cars with no sacrifice in strength. The roof alone can support a load of over five tons. The weight saved in the 450SE contributes to its better mileage.

Its aerodynamically designed configuration was created in a wind tunnel. As it cruises, its shape slices through the air much as an aircraft's wing does — with low drag. Low drag means less fuel waste.

It has radial tires. Radials produce better fuel mileage than other kinds of tires because they have lower rolling resistance.

Bear in mind—all of these fuel-saving advantages are to be found in the Mercedes-Benz with our largest engine. Those of you who own one of our six- or four-cylinder models should enjoy even greater mileage benefits. And you Mercedes-Benz Diesel owners have always been quick to report extraordinary fuel economy.

Now we are all required to reduce driving speeds and asked to limit the use of our cars. Nevertheless, the automobile is—and will continue to be—the primary means of transportation for all of us.

Remember: You own a Mercedes-Benz. The finest car that hearts and hands and minds can produce. And while you most likely have never considered it an economy car, I think that, on reflection, you will agree that your Mercedes-Benz offers you unique advantages. Especially in light of today's energy crisis.

The Long Travail To Fire A Teacher

alpais High School District court trial. hired to teach English at Tam High a young man named Kenneth A. Anderson, who had graduated from California State Polytechnic College with a major in physical education and a minor in English and who had taught English and coached at Pittsburg and Novato high schools.

Anderson had been at Novato High for two years and had a good record there, according to Supt. James G. Bunker. He would have been recommended if the Tam district had inquired about him, Bunker said - but it did not.

IN 1970, Anderson passed from so-called "probationary" partial tenure status to full tenure in the Tam High District. And about that time, some complaints about him began to surface.

He displayed a Viet Cong flag in the classroom, made "outrageous" statements which some students took to encourage bombing and other violence, showed a Vietnam war atrocity movie in his "English" classes, and engaged in "sensitivity training," among other things.

He allowed his students to wander about campus when they were supposed to be in class. His grading practices were erratic. One time he gave an entire advanced English class failing grades at midterm, then gave all A's" as final marks.

The Tam High principal began assembling a dossier on the controversial teacher. And in the spring of 1971, he was notified that he would not be reemployed for the next school year.

IT IS NOT so simple, howevand give Anderson a chance to states with such laws.

In the summer of 1967, Tam- reply. He could then demand a

He did so. In June, 1971, the district filed suit in Marin Superior Court. And it put Anderson on non-teaching status, but still with full pay, pending determination of the case.

The affair dragged on, waiting on depositions. Some students launched a campaign to put Anderson back in the classroom, as did the Mill Valley branch of Marin Alternative.

Then new charges were added: that the teacher had shared a cabin with a 17-year-old girl student on a trip to Yosemite, and that he had been involved in the bombing by a 17-year-old boy student of the high school and two banks. This latter was never proved.

At that point, Anderson, was suspended without pay.

FINALLY THE CASE went to trial last month. And last week, Judge E. Warren McGuire upheld the firing. He found no proof that the teacher had any role in the bombings, but sufficient other offenses proved to justify dismissal.

KENNETH A. ANDERSON probably was as good a teacher as many who remain in classrooms here and elsewhere in California. But how often can a school district go through two and one-half years of trial, travail and expense to get rid of an unsatisfactory teacher? And how many school boards have the stomach to do it?

The situation grows worse every year, as the legislature continues to amend tenure laws and the Winton Act to make it harder to dismiss teachers. It will grow far, far worse if compulsory collective bargaining is allowed in the public schools. Then the test for keeping a job will be simply whether, to dismiss a teacher. Under er a teacher has paid his union the law, the district had to dues - as it is today in Michiprepare a statement of charges gan, Hawaii, and several other

There will be additional chaos if you don't care enough to take the time right now to endeavor to put a stop to the usurpation of your rights.

As a voter and taxpayer you fund the public schools including the salaries of all teachers. You also fund the fire and police departments including the salaries of their personnel

Through AB 1243 the control of these public employees would go to a private organization, namely, a union. As a condition of employment in their own government, teachers, firemen and policemen would have to pay dues to a private union and the officials of this union would eventually control the three categories of employees mentioned herein including ordering them to the strike

If government is of the people, by the people and for the people as Lincoln said, your concerted efforts must be put forth now to keep repetitive strikes from occuring in the domains of these three essential services.

Candidate Feels Women Overlooked

Being 32 and therefore the youngest candidate in the race for the city council of Tiburon, and having done previous research on the woman's role in our city, I was very interested in Rebecca Larsen's "Notebook" article of Jan. 4.

Since Tiburon became a city in 1964, only two of the 16 city council seats have been held by women. There are no women presently serving and none in the campaign for the three vacant council

In Tiburon, planning commissioners and park and recreation commissioners are appointed by the city council. Since 1964, the planning commission has included three women out of a total of 27 commissioners with one of the seven current commissioners being a woman. The parks and recreation commission id a total of 23 commissioners with five of those being women with three of the seven present commissioners being women. In other words, out of the 66 public officials that have served in the City of Tiburon since 1964 only 10 - or 15 per cent - have been women.

The participation and contributions of women to the community of Tiburon are innumerable. . . Yet, it is apparent from the statistics listed above, that women have not been substantially involved in the established decision making process of Tiburon. . .

He could, he promises, have it ready by 1976, in time for 100th anniversary hooplah. Nice historical stage sets - the Yukon, the Southwest, New England. Plus a daily Mardi Gras parade. Eat your heart out, Disneyland!

Of course, there'll have to be a motor hotel, an industrial park, a shopping plaza, and a six-lane highway leading to an 85-acre parking lot.

But come on, Gurnee. A $7-million payroll goes with this. And if you're losing a little farmland, we'll tell you what we're going to do. Plans include, last but not least, the model of a small American town - sort of, well, the way Gurnee used to be.

THERE IS NO SENSE - or compassion — in telling people who are losing jobs that the energy crisis may be a "blessing in disguise."

But if it ends up canceling such subtleties of latter-day civilization as electric jogging treadmills and stage-set farms that replace real ones, can the energy crisis be all bad?

The energy crisis seems to outline, almost to the point of cartoon, two faces

And then there's can just to stay in one place. But that's the caricaturist's Puritan - the American conscience in prickly gray homespun - wagging his head "no."

John Burton Swipes Behr's Idea Of How To Avoid 'Collier Towers'

Assemblyman John L. Burton apparently likes to come to Marin for more than his political future (remember, he's the Burton who hasn't made it to Congress yet). He also came over to swipe his latest brainstorm.

As reported last Wednesday in a wire story from Sacramento, the San Francisco Democrat proposed that the need for a new capitol be eliminated by moving the governor's office into a new executive office building.

He attributed the plan to unnamed 'prominent citizens," according to United Press International.

But by less than a remarkable coincidence, the first public airing of the suggestion came from Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. In his weekly "Sacramento Report' last July 23, Behr suggested that if the governor's offices were relocated out of the east wing "there might be enough room left for the legislature in the capitol.

On Aug. 6, he suggested "assembling the governor and other constitutional officers in a new building. Behr's staff was thoughtful enough to recall for us that Burton's office came to them for a copy of the two columns. Original ideas apparently are in short supply in Sacramento.

MARIN COUNTY Supervisor Michael Wornum, however, often comes up with something distinctly original.

"If Nixon can use a commercial airliner, you can start riding the bus.

Upon seeing Bolinas attorney Paul D. Kayfetz at a meeting the other night, for example, Wornum offered the prompt remark: "I wish he'd been bitten by a rabid egret.'

Kayfetz has been protesting Wornum's conduct as chairman of the North Central Coast Regional Commission, criticism that Wornum suspects has something to do with Wornum's candidacy for state Assembly.

LAST WEEK marked Wornum's departure from the Golden Gate Bridge District board of directors, where he has worked hard for five years to improve the lot of the commuter.

The board adopted two resolutions praising his service, one the excessively fulsome version that traditionally is issued by official bodies, the other somewhat lighter.

Its whereases included observations that Wornum "has been most diligent in attending meetings, except for those which have fallen on British Empire Day, St. Crispin's Day, the Birthday of the Queen and the anniversary of the death of Admiral Lord Nelson," that he "has contributed to this board the same type of forthright thinking that has led to the dissolution of the British Empire," and that he "has determined to shorten his hair and heighten his political office." After the board groaned its way through a painful reading of the high praise in the formal resolution, San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini asked if there were two Michael Wornums, and "Is it signed by his mother?"

FOR NO PARTICULAR reason, this is a good chance to suggest the bridge board add a slot to its agenda to allow the public to speak. The present prohibition against public speaking is an affront to a democratic system, and ought to offend even the most autocratic bridge

System Of Government Favors Leads Inevitably To Corruption

(Reprinted from Wali Street Journal)

In his white papers on milk support prices and the ITT case, President Nixon has served up a slice of the political process, which one noted scholar once defined as who gets what, where, when and how. It is a grubby business, but probably a necessary one, and in this context the very definition of impropriety starts to blur.

Take the typical senator or congressman from a dairy state. The odds are very great that he will receive campaign contributions from milk producers. The odds are also very great that he will support higher milk prices, tight import controls and any other favor the government can bestow on milk producers. Is this corruption, or is it a congressman representing his constituency?

. . . If everything else had been the same, except that there had been no question of campaign contributions, would the congressman's vote or president's decision come out another way? If so, that's wrongdoing. If not, that's Wash-

WITHIN THESE MORES, the president has presented a strong case. He concedes that in the milk case he knew that large contributions had been promised (apparently not all of them were delivered). He concedes that he was moved by "traditional political considerations," meaning that he could not allow a Democratic Congress to outbid him by too much in terms of government goodies passed out to farm states. But in the total context as the white papers paint it, there already were powerful forces moving the government toward the eventual decision in both the milk support and ITT cases. It's not easy to imagine an opposite decision even if there had been no campaign contribution.

In the milk case, the milk producers had already lined up great support in Congress for the higher support prices. The white paper quite plausibly says that the president concluded Congress would pass legislation mandating higher prices, and that while philosophically the administration was opposed to large agricultural subsidies, a dramatic veto of Congress' measure would cost many farm-state votes. So the president followed his political instincts, or was it the will of the people? In the ITT case, the white paper repeats much of what we ourselves have said many times: The government was losing the case in the lower courts, yet in the consent settlement it won the largest divestiture in history and a ban on major acquisitions by ITT for 10 years. The conglomerate movement stopped, which was the larger goal the antitrust division was seeking. Even without any kind of contribution, the decision makes eminent

TO SAY THAT NONE of this violated the existing mores is not to say the mores are uplifting ones. We ourselves think that politics ought to be something more than that classic definition suggests, but all too often its cynicism fits reality. At some point, the nation may want to take some of the seaminess out of the game by public financing of campaigns, though that idea has huge pitfalls of its own notably the problem of deciding who gets this particular handout. We wonder, though, whether public financing would really change anything basic. There would still be huge favors to be won in Washington, and those seeking themwould find ways to compete.

The basic corruption in the milk-price case does not lie in the method of financing political campaigns but in the method of determining milk prices. The only solution to this type of corruption is to get the government as completely as possible out of bestowing favors to this group or that. Whic is to say, to stop looking to Washington for the solution to life's every annoyance.

Fairfax May Be Causing Trouble By Its Use Of Police Reserves

The City of Fairfax is begging for trouble, or so it would

Why else would the city fathers leave themselves so wide open by staffing the police department with untrained and often unsupervised reserve patrolmen?

.The city's practice came to light some months ago when a councilman sought discussion of the matter but was "turned off" by his four colleagues.

Since then, the use of reserve patrolmen in place of full time regular officers has continued. Two weeks ago, a reserve officer was driving a squad car that collided with a youngster on a bicycle meeting sometime. The coastal commission, like any other public body, is there to publicly consider issues within its jurisdiction. But it put on a strange performance last Thursday night.

Some law enforcement agencies in the county, such as the sheriff's department, have strict policies against reserve officers being left unsupervised let alone assigned a beat.

Bolinas attorney Paul D. Kayfetz, who previously had charged commission Chairman Michael Wornum with a "moral conflict-of-interest" in his dealings with Seadrift developers, attempted to present his position before the full commission.

Wornum "fast gaveled" him out of order, saying it was a "personal attack" and not commission business. The commission agreed, with one commissioner even suggesting a sheriff's deputy be called if Kayfetz continued to press the

Then Commissioner Ellen Johnck of San Francisco announced she had a statement to read in support of Wornum.

Wornum, to add objectivity to the matter, stepped down temporarily as chairman and passed the gavel to Vice Chairman Margaret B. Azevedo.

Commissioner Johnck read her statement, which was more of a personal attack on Kayfetz than a resolution of support for Wornum.

When Kayfetz attempted to respond, he again was ruled out of order, with Mrs. Azevedo explaining it wasn't a "public hearing.'

Mrs. Azevedo, by the way, is Supervisor Wornum's appointee to the Marin County Planning Commission.

Idaho Could Operate 26 Years On Proposed Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) - To give you an idea of the size of Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed $9.8 billion state budget, it would run the state government of Idaho for 26 years at its current spending level.

If stretched end-to-end in $1 bills, it would girdle the earth 37 times.

It is enough to give every citizen of the tiny European monarchy of liechtenstein a $440,000 present.

But it would keep the federal government running for only 12 days under President Nixon's proposed 1974-75 budget or give everyone in China, the world's most populous nation, $12 each.

DETROIT (UPI) - Small cars begin rolling off three more assembly lines today as the switch from gas-hungry big cars increased because of the gasoline shortage scare and higher fuel prices.

Altogether, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler this week were calling back about 25,000 workers who had been temporarily laid off, either because they built slow-selling big cars or their plants were being converted to small car production.

Since December, about 60,000 have been permanently idled, not knowing when or if they'll be called back to their jobs.

Ford began turning out the intermediate Torino as well as the luxury Torino Elite at its Chicago assembly plant, which once built a full-size Ford. At Doraville, Ga., General Motors was building intermediate Chevrolet Chevelles and Monte Carlos and Oldsmobile Cutlasses instead of full-size cars. Chrysler later in the week will begin producing its compact Dart and Valiant models at Newark, Del.

In a recent interview, GM President Edward N. Cole said

'The demand for smaller, safer and more efficient cars will expand," Cole said, adding he doesn't expect to see a complete transition to the small

"There are 80 million cars out there (on the highways) that can be classified as regular sized," he said. "How satisfied their owners would be with a smaller car is a question.

Cole said he expected many of the traditional car buyers will come back in the market. Besides the three plants reopening this week, Ford is converting its Wayne, Mich., plant

Youngsters in the Dark

Because of the energy-saving switch to Daylight Saving Time, millions of youngsters have suddenly started going to school in the dark. The American Automobile Association and many public officials are warning motorists to be on the lookout for children, whose presence on darkened streets is made doubly hazardous by winter driving conditions. Parents are urged to put reflective tape or cloth on their youngsters' outer clothing. Such tape, for example, is the only thing that makes the child on the far left visible. Extra caution on the part of parents, children, and motorists will be essential until the days start getting longer.

Roles Of Science Need Correct Uses

the 16th of 20 essays by leading men in the world's academic community. The writer of this essay is professor of physics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Herein he discusses science in all its applications to life the world over.)

Science: Hero, villain or scapegoat? Ask a loaded question, expect a charged reply! In our time, no honest and reflective respondent could, I believe, say other than all three.

The question demands some clarification. The science to which it refers is not the science of Einstein the recluse, an apparently unworldly, deep, erudite inquiry into the farthest extensions of experience.

Nor is it the science that gives weight to sunbeams and finds a clock radioactively ticking away in the blackened clays where our ape-like ancestors made their new-won fire. We must in honesty include technology, the technology which made bombs of the nuclear energies and set the radiations blowing in the wind. Technology is not science, but modern science is the major source of herein on the separation, alin another context from keeping must be a balance of imaginathe distinction. The sun is a star; all those stars are suns. The mountains were born, and will die in level plateaus.

Long enough ago - and it is very long compared to all the numbered generations of the Book of Genesis - all living things, plant, beast, and man, shared a common physical ancestor, some microorganism of the sea. Human beings are a single species; all our national histories, looking back a dozen millennia, merge together into one universal hunter's life. wandering, sagacious, close to the game.

These are some jewels of our science. They do not enter the routines of daily life; but they fill and mold the mind. I am grateful that I lived in a time when these clear answers came to the wondering questions and conjectures of every culture since men and women first spoke around the fire.

good shamans and bad shamans but most people feared them - in the old days there were many things to fear." So speaks Pitseolak, a woman past seventy, a great artist of the Cape Dorset people of West Baffin Land (reported among her own gifted prints in a recent book)

Pitseolak here bears witness to a crucial point. The work of the shaman, involving in his trance the spirits of the game. is as different as possible from the style and approach of public, objective, detached, and cool post-Galilean science. Yet the people speak of the shaman much as the dimmest viewers of science would speak. Justifiably or not, science, like the shaman, induces a kind of fear in many today. It seems plain that insofar as there is truth in these two views, the fault cannot lie in the methods and approach of modern science. The fact is that in most societies power over men and things enters the domain of social conflict. Any power, so long as it be really felt, will become the prize sought by contestants in society. They may be hunter and shaman, nation and nation, poor and rich, worker and own-

. The list is long. That there is danger and cruthere is no doubt.

But science cannot and ought not to take the blame for that. Here science is scapegoat. The weapons in the dark silos are cruel and deadly; they arise not from science but from nationalism and war. The smoke over a hundred cities is acrid and disclass divisions of society; divisions parted among the men who seek profit, the people who need jobs, the cities which trade with the faraway farms for their food. Science is a source of power, and as such it becomes agent of the strong.

When the weaker attain strength, it is their agent too. To blame a science is to make a scapegoat, to avoid joining that battle for an equitable, worldwide social order which must someday come, deriving

It is not for a paragraph to give the answers. But I believe that the task for the good and the wise is to ensure access for the minds of all humankind to the truths of science, each to his measure. Science is no longer the property of the West, any more than it belongs to Galileo's Florence. It is everyone's in potential and in practice. It ought to be made real to all by education.

The answer to its divisiveness is universality; let power and the judgments of power spread.

The old dream of a species equal and united remains latent in the material goods and the widening knowledge brought by science. It is the banner of a worldwide science, an accessible science, a science with powers for all, to which I would

Milliners See A Good Year As Women Go Back To Hats

NEW YORK (UPI) - In a time of economic, political and energy crises, the millinery industry is heady with optimism. Women, it declares, are getting back into hats. Sales volume for 1973 was up 40 per cent over '72 and even better sales are expected in the current year. The industry calls it a "boom" and expects it to equal, or maybe top, its peak years of the 1950s.

One of the reasons is the old law of turning to pleasanter matters when the news is bad; tradition has it that a woman goes out and buys a new bonnet when she wants a lift.

AND THE youth fling with hats, especially the novelty, kicky, styles is a strong factor, millinery spokesman say.

The rosy forecast came during the semiannual show of the Millinery Institute of America (MIA) for visiting fashion re-

The institute is a participant in a series of showings of spring collections under auspices of the New York Couture Business Council, a trade and promotion

"The return of the hat is no longer a prediction, but a positive fact, "said an MIA source. 'Hat departments are crowded with customers...in the American and European (ready-towear) collections, hats were shown with costumes ranging from the most casual sports clothes, including pants, to the most elegant evening wear.'

ONE OF the new style trends is a swing back to an old favorite, the big, floppy brimmed hat, variously called the "picture" or the "garden party" in its other heyday. It's all a part of the swing to softness in all feminine fash-

Dozens of designers feature it. Some of the widest and floppiest brims come from Mr. John. In the millinery show he featured one in sharp yellow straw with a wide band of green and orange. Another, with the brim stiffened instead of flopping over the face, was in pale beige felt with the entire hat including the underside of the brim covered with thin, black veiling.

Designer Don Anderson spelled out another trend among the brims.

Anderson's white straw was a stiffened brim, the undersize reds and blues, and the same floral scheme repeated in the attached scarf tied under the chin. Watch for this under-thebrim and around the-throat painted with huge flowers in or to stand out as one big single flower in a dip in a brim.

Milliners find the young wearing hats with jeans, denim, long skirts, for sports, in styles from floppy brims to little head huggers, crocheted caps, kicky prints, what have you.

Pants costumes also call for hats apparently. The industry show featured them in cloches, brimmed numbers, big straws, the porkpies and snap brim fedoras, but always with a tailored look.

ONE OF the "new" style trends is a swing back to an old favorite - the big floppy hat. The Millinery Institute of America showing in New York Tuesday displayed (top) a wide brim straw by Don Anderson with painted flowers in red and blue matched in the scarf, and (bottom) Mr. John's outside floppy hat in pale beige covered with thin black

Their Problem Was In Telling The Truth About Their Income

DEAR HELEN:

This isn't a lovelorn problem - it's house-worn.

Again, the little middle people get a royal shafting. We applied for the Government 235 Subsidized Housing Program, and they told us my husband's income was "a bit too high," that the plan was for "poor" families living in rat-infested, or condemned dumps and the purpose was to get them into "livable structures" with small down payments, etc.

I know many families in 235s, and not one of them came from the slums. One family lived in a new apartment, owned a camper, boat, large color TV and a big car. The government checks only incomes for the year previous, and that year the wife didn't work (though she had for six years before 1972).

Another family "forgot" they owned a mountain cottage when applying, qualified, and now live in a new government subsizied home. We just weren't smart enough to lie! Still another added air conditioning, a

A banker said we were lucky not to get a 235-built house because they are "poorly constructed junk" and fall apart almost before you move in. He also said they'd be in bad areas, and owned by don't-care people who wouldn't keep them up. I thought the government made periodic checks to see the houses were okay.

The upshot was, we keep on paying high rent and can't buy a house because we can't scrape up the down payment. With money so tight and interest so high, what's an honest middling low-income family to

I've heard the 235 plan is frozen due to lack of funds and they are not accepting applications, temporarily. Maybe the government will start a new plan, buying every family who 'needs'' one, a swimming pool, car, boat, camper and TV, so they wouldn't have to lie about it. My house is insured for the amount it cost me three years ago. Since then, the price of houses here has boomed. I am wondering if I should increase the insurance to keep up with the market.

Under the Care Labeling of Textile and Wearing Apparel Law, clothing labels must provide instructions for care and maintenance. Items not covered by the regulations are headwear. handwear and footwear, except some hosiery, and apparel that requires no care or maintenance, such as disposable products. DEAR JOSEPHINE,

I have a joint bank account with my daughter. I understand, that, on my death, this account is sealed by the government. Is this so?

Also, is it possible to have a joint account in three names? I would like to add my granddaughter's name. She feels her daughter's name should be on the deed also. Can this be done without a lawyer? E. V. S. Calabasas DEAR E. V. S.,

In reply to your first ques-tion, unless California law has been changed recently, deposits in joint tenancy may be paid to any joint tenant or any survivor if the bank is not given contrary instructions. But it would be a good idea to ask your bank whether your daughter can withdraw the account upon your death.

As for having a joint account in three names, this is acceptable practice.

With respect to changing the title to real property to include the name of your granddaughter along with your name and that of your daughter, legal authorities advise that this can be done by deeding the property to someone who would immediately deed it back to you, your daughter and granddaugh-

It really should be done with the advice and assistance of a lawyer. The "strawman" to whom you deed the property should be a trustworthy person without debts to complicate or endanger the transfer.

Clothing Won't Be Hurt By Oil Shortage

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) Fashion industry executives promised Friday that the oil shortage will not bring an end to "easy care" clothing, or sharp increases in prices - at least for the next six months.

Dress manufacturers, now showing their spring and summer fashions, "have commitments on the fabrics and prices, at least through the summer," said Michael Friedman, president of the West Coast Salesman's Association.

The group is holding its annual spring and summer trade show, the largest West Coast exhibit of fashions, here this

Things started to improve with the second choral work. the offertory, "Intende voci orationis meae," by Franz Schubert. This piece is scored for tenor solo, chorus and orchestra, but because of the unavailability of the orchestral parts the orchestral reduction was realized on the organ by Arthur Hill. Raymond Duste also contributed immeasurably by his clear and expressive performance of the solo oboe line. Daniel Parkerson has a clear and pleasant tenor voice which was well suited to Schubert.

The second half of the program was devoted to Mozart's Grand Mass in C Minor (K. 427). The chorus had the solid support of a chamber orchestra of good musicians - the brass instruments adding a particularly stirring element. The four vocal soloists were Maria Alessi, soprano; Mildred Owen,

A developer planning to build 240 townhouses and apartments on the ridge between Marin City and Mill Valley has promised to provide 48 units for moderate-income families. Unit Two of the Seaport project in Strawberry is to earmark 44 units out of 292 for moderateincome tenants.

Planned apartment projects sidetracked by the sudden interest in open space included the 780-unit Tennessee Valley Marinview project where 225 units of low-moderate income housing was included; the 252project on the Catholic Archdiocese property in Greenbrae, where 38 units were specially earmarked, and the 450unit San Pedro Reserve project, with up to 230 units reserved for use by the elderly or low-in-

The county planning staff, under policy adopted last year by the supervisors, may recommend higher density bonuses if the developer agrees to help the low-cost housing campaign. To qualify for bonuses now, a project must be at least 50 units, but Mrs. Azevedo's committee will suggest that figure be lowered.

The committee also will recommend that the supervisors seek state law changes so some county agency can set up a land bank to provide low-cost building sites to private developers. Another solution may be easing the building code for families building their own housing, or trying experimental materials to cut costs.

Allowing more second units in single-family neighborhoods is a suggestion - repeated from earlier years - in the committee report.

MODERATE PRICE TAG - Not everyone who will live in La Casa Novato housing development in Ignacio will have to pay high rentals, since the developer has earmarked 14 units for moderate and middle income families. But housing for families without large incomes has been slow in coming to Marin, partially pushed aside by concern for open space.

SAN FRANCISCO - Hear- who believe its implications ings opened in U.S. District may affect growth control plans Court here today on Petaluma's in their own areas. growth control plan.

Plaintiff in the action is the Construction Industry Association of Sonoma County, which asks that the city's building limitation of 500 new living units per year be struck down, along with plans for a 200-foot "green belt" around the community proposed by the city's environmental design plan.

The construction industry representatives believe the growth-limiting ordinance is an unconstitutional attempt to prevent new residents from moving into Petaluma.

Foundation Request On Agenda

An application for a permit to allow the Delancey Street Foundation to convert an abandoned Mill Valley supermarket into a warehouse will be discussed by the Mill Valley Planning Commission at 8 p.m. today in city

The foundation, which tries to rehabilitate drug addicts ex-convicts, would use the old Purity market on East Blithedale Avenue as a storage area for food and supplies.

Also tonight, the commission will consider a new ordinance designed to limit the number of tourist type businesses which can set up shop in Mill Valley.

Businesses considered tourist oriented, such as pottery or ceramics stores or leather goods shops, would have to get a permit from the planning commission. At present they can open without such special approval.

NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE

The subject used by students utilizing the concrete facility situated at Redondo Beach on Puget Sound, 20 miles south of Seattle, is the technique of commercial diving, or deep sea

The program is financed in part through sea grant awards doled out through a division of the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration of the Department of Commerce.

So far, Highline, a two-year college, has been given $215,000, most of it to support participation in the Tektite II program in the Virgin Islands. In 1970 Highline's entire diving instruction program was moved to the project site on St. John Island to serve as support and safety divers for aquanaut-scientists working in the undersea habitat project.

Since Highline began technical diving in 1967, it has graduated 72, two-thirds of whom have been placed in jobs throughout the world, mostly with off-shore oil drilling, marine construction and salvage firms. One, a woman, is an oceanographer at an eastern university.

The school has more than $165,000 worth of equipment, most of it donated or purchased with federal funds. The gear includes a diving bell, recom-

The course instructors are two master divers, Peter A. Williams and Maurice P. Talbot, both with experience dating back to salvage work in World War II.

> "Deep sea diving may look glamorous," said Williams, who has been with the school since the diving course began. "But actually it is a lot of hard work. A lot of attention must be paid to engineering requirements and safety procedures."

He said applications are received from throughout the country. All candidates are screened for physical as well as emotional factors. And all must have scuba diving certification to enter the program.

During the first year, students take 16 to 18 credits, one to three more than the normal student work load-for three quarters of "dry land" instruction except for life saving courses conducted in the college's indoor pool.

After that, they get down to the basics, learning skills common to all seafaring men such as marlinspike seamanship as well as the physiology and basic skills of diving, sea safety and decompression.

In their second year of study they spend most of their classpression chamber and dive con- room hours at the dock perfecttrol console. A 10-ton crane is ing their techniques of diving.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) -When you dial the phone of Rick and Kathy Neustadt in Beverly Hills there is a click and then you hear a few bars of the march from "The Bridge of the River Kwai.

Then Rick's voice comes on and says:

"Kathy is at home but she is busy changing Andy's diapers. If you will leave your name and number when you hear the buzzer, Kathy will call you as soon as she is free. The Neustadts are one of thousands of American families indulging in supplemental telephonic equipment ranging from home answering recorders to pre-set dialing devices.

Retailers say that the paraphernalia that can be attached to your phone are one of the hottest selling bits of merchandise on the consumer market.

The giant American Telephone & Telegraph Co. says they are a pain in the neck.

An obstreperous drunk can be one of the most difficult patients for a doctor to handle as an emergency. Too belligerent and too agitated to sleep, he is too far under to exercise good judgment. He disrupts the entire office, emergency room, or hospital ward when he is demanding, noisy, foulmouthed, and weaving about like a bull in a china shop. Sometimes he can be tricked into taking a sedative, such as paraldehyde or chlordiazepoxide. Or convinced to leave. All too often, physicians have no choice but to call the police which, incidentally, is one of the most expedient ways of handling a difficult drunk.

BUT WHAT about the 58year-old spinster who had gallbladder surgery? On the second day, she began to scream tearfully that small, colored animals were coming down from the walls to attack her. She was extremely agitated and tremulous, her face was flushed, and she was obviously frightened. Once sedated, she quieted down. There was no doubt that she had delirium tremens even though her behavior was impeccable and she denied drinking except for an occasional

The truth came out when her brother arrived that evening. She was known to drink several cocktails before lunch and dinner. However, he suspected that she consumed much more during the day because he frequently found empty whisky bottles in the basement and wastebaskets.

THE WOMAN was an alcoholic and the delirium was a symptom that occurs with the withdrawal of alcohol. Within a few days, she improved, although there was some indication that she did not recall what had happened during the episode. She continued to maintain that she was only a social drinker who took an occasional

This case demonstrates that one does not have to be a skid row derelict to develop delirium tremens after the supply of liquor is cut off. Furthermore, these people do not necessarily see pink elephants or polka-dot

REPLY Do they? Laxatives cannot improve on the body's attempt to eliminate the cause of the disorders. At one time physicians prescribed Epsom salts or a milder laxative on the theory that it "cleaned out" whatever was causing the diarrhea. #### Little Savings In Time Switch

SACRAMENTO (UPI) - The conversion to year-round daylight savings time apparently has not resulted in significant reductions in energy consumption in Northern California, officials report. A Pacific Gas & Electric Co.

spokesman said the utility estimates a savings of "less than one-tenth of 1 per cent" because of the switch to daylight time.

Duane Browning, an official for Sacramento Municipal Utility District, also said he foresees no decrease in energy use because of the conversion, which took place a week ago.

He noted that electricity use is averaging about 10 per cent below previous years, but said the trend was firmly established last year and apparently was not influenced by the switch to daylight savings time.

Abortion Law Repeal Asked

NEW YORK (UPI) - Cardinal Terence Cooke, the archbishop of New York, wants a constitutional amendment to overturn the U.S. Supreme Court's decision last year allowing abortion on demand.

"Despite the opinion of the court, we still hold, together with millions of others in our society, that all human life is sacred - from conception through the nine months of growth and development in the womb, through infancy, childhood, adolescence, maturity, middle and old age, to death, he told worshippers at a service in St. Patrick's Cathedral to honor Catholic couples who celebrate golden anniversaries.

Crisis Laid To Oil Companies

SOUTH GATE, Calif. (UPI) -United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock told an audience of layed-off General Motors employees that the multinational oil companies— which he called the "seven sisters"were behind the fuel crisis.

Woodcock said seven huge oil firms had shown themselves to be accountable to no single government, and that they were manipulating the fuel shortage by shifting and holding back supplies. The UAW president said, meanwhile, that among the solutions to the energy crisis would be for state and federal governments to push for more rapid transit systems and for Americans to end the "love affair" with their cars.

Champion Miami Flashes 'Greatest Ever' Credentials

RALPH CHATOIAN

I-J Sports Editor

It's A Dynasty Called Dolphins

After watching the Miami Dolphins methodically do their thing, one gets the feeling this group of athletes is unbeatable. It's the same kind of feeling I used to get when I was a kid watching the Yankees year after year in the World Series.

These guys in the pin stripe uniforms used to stride onto the field and it was almost a certainty they would win. They had the best pitchers and the best hitters and that extra intangible - the winning attitude. Millions of fans pulled for the underdogs and hoped some upstart team would surprise the Yankees; it rarely happened.

Jack Nicklaus gives me the same feeling when he pulls out his driver on the first hole of a sudden death playoff.

FROM THE START of yesterday's 24-7 Super Bowl victory, it was apparent the Dolphins had too much for the Minnesota Vikings. I sat there in front of the television set and watched the Dolphins march down the field like an army. The captain would hand the valuable package to his burly sergeant and he would advance it a few yards forward across the enemy lines. The sergeant was relentless in his desire to move forward, never a thought of retreat. He took that package across enemy lines 33 times and gained 145 yards doing it.

Tiring of the machine-like precision the Dolphins were displaying, my 11-year-old son kept trying to change channels at every time out. He wanted to see Godzilla crush buildings in some Japanese film. "Godzilla is right there in front of you," I reminded him. "He's wearing No. 39 and his name is Larry Csonka."

Instead of crushing buildings, this Godzilla was crushing bodies. They knew he was coming but they were powerless to do anything about it. The Viking defenders tried to hit him low, they tried to hit him high, and one even tried to stop him by using a forearm across the eyebrow. Even that

THE DOLPHINS wanted to show the world they were the best team in football and they didn't want to leave any doubts. They got out in front 14-0 so quickly, scoring touchdowns the first two times they gained possession, all doubt was removed about the outcome. The question after the first quarter was not who was going to win, but by how much.

The domination was complete. As they did against the Raiders two weeks before in the American Football Conference championship, the Dolphins made a good team look bad. The offensive linemen pushed aside those highly publicized members of the Vikings' front four and Csonka barreled through.

Miami football is precision at its finest. It's nothing fancy, mainly execution. Vince Lombardi's great Green Bay teams of the 60s relied on this and it worked for Lombardi's teams as it is working for the machine designed by Don Shula.

BEFORE THE DOLPHINS camearound, football followers were saying there would never be a team which could dominate the opposition as much as the Packers of the '60s did. But now a team has come along which does dominate the game as those Lombardi teams did.

Shula, after Super Bowl VIII, quoted as saying "This team is better than the one a year ago, even though that team did not lose a game." Will they be better next year? I shudder to think about it.

Overconfident U.S. Bows To Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) -"Maybe the Americans overestimated themselves a bit,' chortled Jairo Velasco, who paired with Ivan Molina on the Colombian Davis Cup tennis team which shocked the United States 4-1 in the North American zone finals yesterday.

Velasco and Moiina each won two singles matches from the U.S. squad, losing only Saturday's doubles event.

The humiliating defeat, the earliest ever suffered by a U.S. team in Davis Cup competition, eliminates the Americans from contention for the prestigious international trophy in 1974. Last year, the U.S. was beaten 5-0 in the challenge round by Australia.

Dennis Ralston, the non-playing captain of the American team, praised the play of the Colombians. "Molina played very well," he said, "and Ve-

Velasco clinched the victory for Colombia in the best-of-five competition by beating Erik van Dillen of Aptos, 6-0, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3 in yesterday's opening match, giving the home team an insurmountable 3-1 lead.

Molina closed out the onesided series by routing Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md. 6-2, 6-1, 6-0.

The Americans had drawn criticism for sending a team which did not include a number of well-known stars, but Ralston defended the squad - van Dillen, Solomon, Charlie Pasarell and Eddie Dibbs - Sunday

'This was the best U.S. Davis Cup team available," declared Ralston, who explained that some of the better-known Americans could not compete because of other commitments. Among the top U.S. tennis stars absent were Stan Smith, Arthur Ashe, Jimmy Connors, Marty Riessen, Cliff Richey and Bob

NO, CHUCK - Minnesota Vikings' running back Chuck Foreman (44) looked like he was expecting the officials to hand him the football during yesterday's Super Bowl, but they weren't. Foreman's teammate Oscar Reed had just fumbled and the Miami

Ross, a 6-foot-10, 220-pound sophomore center, was the toughest player on a night of extremely tough play Saturday as he led the visitors from Los Altos to a 54-48 basketball victory over College of Marin.

Fully six inches taller and 30 pounds heavier than any player the Tars could use against him, Ross scored 12 points, clamped onto 18 rebounds and set pick after bone-jarring pick as he personally dragged Marin from the ranks of the state's undefeated teams.

The loss before about 900 fans in Kentfield was Marin's first after 14 victories this year, and gave the Tars a 2-1 record in the Camino Norte Conference.

It also ended Marin streaks dating back to last year of 11 straight at home, 11 straight in the conference and 23 straight during the regular season.

Foothill, meanwhile, stayed tied with De Anza of Cupertino atop the conference standings at 3-0, and improved its overall record to 9-7. The Owls may be the best 9-7 team any of those fans will ever see.

'Seven of our games were against teams ranked in the top ten in the state," said Foothill coach Jerry Cole. "We've lost several close ones. We're pleased to beat the best team we've seen so far." Marin was ranked third in California entering the game.

To be sure, Ross was not the only reason Foothill won. The Owls shot 44 per cent as a team (24 of 54), and limited Marin to an embarrassing 31 per cent (20

Steve Maehl, a 6-4 Owl forward just rounding into form after playing football, led all scorers with 19 points. Marin's Wil Garner tallied 15 and Leonard Smith 11.

But Ross was most of the story, as he led Foothill to a 39-26 rebounding advantage. "He just seemed to take the bit tonight," said Cole. "Those first two rebounds, he just seemed to go through people.

Ross did not start, which is customary, since he had been splitting playing time evenly with 6-8 John Hollister.

With Ross on the floor, Foothill shot out to a 19-7 lead. The Tars rallied behind Smith and Garner to come wtihin two points at halftime, 26-24, and still trailed only 30-28 before three straight buckets by Rock Carlson put Foothill farther out

Awesome Dolphins Top Beleaguered Vikings

HOUSTON (UPI) - If the Miami Dolphins aren't the greatest team ever to put on a set of shoulder pads, then they'd like to know who is.

The Dolphins flashed their "greatest ever" credentials yesterday by overpowering a strong Minnesota Viking team 24-7 in Super Bowl VIII to record their second straight world title.

Only one other National Football League team - the Green Bay Packers of 1966-67, ever won back-to-back Super Bowls and their coach, the late Vince Lombardi, was honored by having the World Championship Trophy named after him. Now the Dolphins have registered their claim

They did it yesterday with Larry Csonka blasting for two touchdowns and a game record 145-yard rushing total and close friend Jim Kiick squirming across for another TD, his first of the season. And they did it with a defense that held Fran Tarkenton and the Vikings in check most of the afternoon and bottled up Minnesota in its own half of the field.

And when it was all over Csonka, bone-weary and bearing an ugly gash across his right eyebrow and another across the bridge of his nose, from "an honest cheap shot," registered the claim.

"I consider we can compare ourselves to any team that's ever played this game," said the crunching fullback, voted overwhelmingly the game's Most Valuable Player. "I say we're comparable to the Pack.'

The Dolphins set a record last season with a 17-0 mark, the first time it was ever done, and this year became the first team ever to appear in three Super

Dolphin Coach Don Shula had tears welling in his eyes as he accepted the Lombardi Trophy, named after the man who beat him so often as a young Baltimore Colts coach, from Commissioner Pete Rozelle

"There is no question in my mind this team is better than the one a year ago," Shula said. 'This team is better even though that one did not lose a game. Our defense was better and we had Bob Griese at quarterback for the whole year.

game, just blocking and tackling. If you don't do either one, you are in trouble

'What happened was they took the ball, went down the field and got 14 points ahead. It's pretty hard to overcome a lead like that against a good team in a game like this. We still had a chance but those penalties killed us. 'We had a clip on a long runback and another penalty on an onside kick we recovered and that did us in. We're disappointed. We felt we had to play one of our best games to win. They did and we didn't. It really hurts today.

The Dolphins scored on their first possession, just as they had done against Cincinnati and Oakland, as Csonka climaxed a 62-yard drive with a five-yard scoring burst. Kiick squeezed over from the two to end a 58yard drive and the Vikings were in deep trouble. Garo Yepremian made it 17-0 with a 28yard field goal and Csonka bulled across from two yards out on a play in which the entire backfield forgot the starting signal to make it 24-0.

Tarkenton's four-yard run in the final period gave the Vikings their only touchdown, saving them from the first shutout in Super Bowl history and Miami cornerback Curtis Johnson ended another Viking drive with an interception in the end

Shula also answered some questions that had been hanging all week and Yepremian got some bad news that suddenly

His final round 67 over the par 36-35 Phoenix Country Club course put him at 13-under par 271 and preserved his perfect record of seven sub-par rounds in tournament play this year.

Chicago 124-94 after beating the Bulls 101-82. Milwaukee shot 64 per cent

The Bucks scored 14 straight points in that stretch, 12 of them coming off fast breaks. But it was the Milwaukee defense that made it all possible. # Rancho Cotate Five In 2 Pivotal Games

Rancho Cotate High School faces this week the two leaders in the Sonoma County League basketball race, and if the Cougars win both games, they would take at least a share of the top spot.

Tomorrow at 7 p.m., the Cougars (1-1 in league) will host the vastly improved Analy Tigers from Sebastopol (2-0) who are the tallest team in the league with 6-foot-8 Bob Montgomery and 6-6 Don Petri.

The Cougars will confront a different challenge Friday at 8:30 p.m. in Santa Rosa when they tangle with defending champion Cardinal Newman (2-0). The Cardinals are about the same size as Rancho Cotate, but are the quickest team in the Sonoma State College provided a case in point Saturday night with a cooly executed stall that carried the Cossacks to a 74-70 Far Western Conference basketball victory over visiting Sacramento State.

The triumph raised the Cossacks' FWC mark to 2-0 and extended their home court winning streak to 17 games. University of California, Davis (3-0) is one-half game ahead of Sonoma in the FWC.

lead. Sacramento then turned the ball over to the Cossacks, who played keep-away for the next minute and one-half while the crowd of 1,200 roared in approval. The stall was climaxed by Heien, who found Bill Belander all alone under the basket for a score.

The Hornets' Martin Valdez kept it close with three points in the last 30 seconds, but Tom Fitchie calmly made four free throws during that stretch to insure Sonoma's victory.

That the Cossacks were ever in a position to protect a lead with the stall is a direct tribute to Belander, who scored 10 straight points to turn a fivepoint deficit into a 66-65 advantage with four minutes remain-

Belander, who was magnificent all night and finished with a game-high 27 points, also came to Sonoma's rescue in the first half with 11 points in a five-minute stretch that cut the Hornets' 10-point margin down to just one.

'It was a good thing Bill got hot, or we would have been in trouble," said Sonoma coach

Bill Trumbo, who made a strategy change in the second half that almost backfired before Belander righted things.

The Cossacks came out gunning in the second half and built up their biggest lead of the contest, 52-45, with 13 minutes to play. Trumbo then went to the passinggame, to force the Hornets out of their zone, but it

So what would you say? Are the Miami Dolphins, with their eye-popping 32-and-2 record over the past two seasons, the "best ever?"

Mary Fleming thinks so. Miami's 31-year-old tight end has played in five Super Bowl

"We do it so easy, we make the other teams look bad," said Langer. "It's not that they're so bad though, it's just that we're so good.

A. The future course of this stock will probably be marked by excessive volatility particularly on any developments in its suit against IBM. After the favorable decision in this case was announced, share price more than doubled. Since that time the original damage figure of $350 million has been reduced 27 per cent and some of the restrictions and restraints placed on IBM have been modified.
